

BACKGROUND

Burn Stewart Distillers Limited is a fully integrated Scotch whisky producer and brand owner with three single malt whisky distilleries and a strong portfolio of Scotch whisky brands.

With its head office and bottling hall based in East Kilbride near Glasgow, and, with three distilleries; Deanston in Doune, Perthshire; Bunnahabhain on the Isle of Islay; and Tobermory based on the Isle of Mull, Burn Stewart produces and markets a well balanced range of Scotch whisky brands to appeal to every type of Scotch consumer.

In early 2003, Burn Stewart became part of CL WorldBrands Limited, the Trinidadian owned drinks group. Included in the CL WorldBrands structure are Angostura (rum and bitters) and Hine Cognac. The group also owns a number of in-market distribution companies.

DEANSTON

*Deanston Distillery, near Doune, Perthshire, rests on the banks of the River Teith.
This historic building, which dates back to 1785 was originally a cotton mill.*

The mill was converted to a full working distillery in 1966, making use of the crystal clear waters of the River Teith for the distillation of its single malt whisky and of the listed cellar buildings which provide the perfect storage conditions for maturing the whisky. Water powered turbines are the energy source, with two pairs of large bulbous pot stills capable of distilling three million litres of alcohol a year. The enclosed riverside warehouses give excellent conditions of constant humidity and temperature for ageing malt whisky.

DEANSTON BRANDS

Deanston 12 year old Single Highland Malt Scotch Whisky

A golden gem, silky and medium bodied, distilled only by traditional methods from the crystal clear waters of the River Teith, with maturation over 12 years taking place deep in the 200 year old Deanston warehouses and, from here, experience a fine nose that is truly worth the wait.

Scottish Leader Blended Scotch Whisky

An international award winning blend with a honey rich smooth taste profile. It has a growing presence in a number of world markets, most notably in South Africa, where Scottish Leader is currently the no. 4 bottled in Scotland blend and in the Baltic region of Northern Europe where it is the market leader in its category.

Bunnahabhain™

Bunnahabhain Distillery (pronounced Bū-na-ha-venn) lies on the isolated north-eastern tip of the Hebridean Isle of Islay.

The distillery, built in 1881, lies close to the Margadale River (Bunnahabhain means “mouth of the river” from the Scots Gaelic tongue). Today, the Bunnahabhain Distillery maintains the traditional production methods of the 1800’s. Bunnahabhain is quite distinct from the other single malts of the Island, given the wonderfully gentle taste profile for which it is known.

TOBERMORY

The Tobermory Distillery is the only distillery on the picturesque Hebridean Isle of Mull and is one of the oldest operational malt Scotch whisky distilleries. Tobermory celebrated its 200th anniversary in 1998.

The name Tobermory is derived from the Gaelic “Tobar Mhoire”, which means “Well of Mary” and relates to the well and chapel of St Mary. The original name for the distillery - Ledaig (pronounced Led-chig) is also Gaelic and means “safe haven”.

Distillery Tours: Tours on the hour commencing at 11.00am. Last tour 4.00pm (April - end September). Tours at 11.00am, 1.00pm and 3.00pm (October - March).

TOBERMORY BRANDS

Tobermory 10 year old Single Malt Scotch Whisky

Tobermory is born of the finest unpeated malt, yeast and water drawn from dark aromatic Isle of Mull peat lochans. Unique climatic characteristics from Tobermory Bay ensure a fresh lightly peated, smoky nose prevails. The pleasantly surprising taste profile is medium dry with a smooth and fruity tang.

Ledaig 10 year old Single Malt Scotch Whisky

Tobermory’s peated big brother also comes from the delightful Tobermory Distillery and has become synonymous with the peated style of single malt from the island. The fascinating name “Ledaig” pronounced “Led-chig” translates from the Gaelic tongue to “Safe Haven”, aptly named after the area on which the distillery sits, neatly sheltered in Tobermory Bay.
